

1987 Michigan Statewide
Conference
on Child Abuse and Neglect
Skill Building for Child Abuse Professionals
November 16-17, 1987

At the Towsley Center
Ann Arbor, Michigan

Program Content and Objectives

In 1975 the passage of the Michigan Child Protection Law was a milestone in the development of an awareness of child abuse in this state. But, more than a decade has passed and we need to take a look at what we've accomplished, what needs to be done, and what issues await us.

The 1987 Michigan Conference addresses a range of issues related to adequate care of our youth. Issues like AIDS, adolescent sexual offenders, challenges facing the protective services community, teenage pregnancy, infant mortality, emotional abuse, and failure to thrive will be presented.

We have planned a conference that is meant for a broad range of people interested in the problem of child abuse. Our objective is to provide participants with up to date information to aid them in developing new perspectives and strategies for dealing with the problems they face.

We hope you will benefit not only from the information shared by conference speakers, but also from sharing your own experiences with fellow participants.
