

9th Annual Michigan Statewide Conference

CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT

Prevention, Assessment & Treatment

November 13-14, 1990

At the Towsley Center
Ann Arbor, Michigan

Program Content and Objectives

Professionals working in the area of child abuse and neglect face a number of diverse and difficult problems. One of the most critical is the increasing demand on service with a marked decrease in resources to meet those demands. A second is the increasingly complex cases professionals are faced with — families with multiple problems such as substance abuse, domestic violence, physical and developmental disabilities, and mental illness. Families from different cultural and religious backgrounds often require special techniques to assist them. Child abuse professionals may have few peers, may feel isolated from essential contact with other professionals, and have little support and encouragement for what is often miserable work. Specific expertise about certain topics may not be accessible in their geographic area, and different areas may face a varying level of coordination of services. Professionals in this field may face a high level of burnout due to the pain and stress of continuously confronting child abuse and neglect.

This conference has multiple goals designed to meet the problems delineated above:

- The first is to enhance awareness among professionals working with children and families about different aspects of the issue of child abuse and neglect.
- The second is to build concrete skills for the identification, assessment, treatment and prevention of child abuse and neglect, and for methods of coordination of services.
- The third is to bring professionals from throughout the state together in a forum to share information and ideas about child abuse and neglect and to build support networks.

Experts from throughout the country will address participants as a whole and in small group settings, through panels, workshops, and multi-media presentations. Course participants will have the opportunity to learn about other programs and methods through information tables and booths.

The conference is designed for professionals working with families, including: law enforcement personnel, doctors, nurses, mental health professionals, protective services workers; prevention specialists; attorneys; teachers; social workers; psychologists; and psychiatrists.

Participants will have the opportunity to encounter state-of-the-art information about child abuse and neglect to aid them in developing new perspectives in their work, and the chance to share ideas and resources with colleagues throughout the State of Michigan.
