Conference Center
Ypsilanti, Michigan

Professionals working in the area of child abuse and neglect face a number of diverse and difficult problems. One of the most critical is the increasing demand on service with a marked decrease in resources to meet those demands. A second is the increasingly complex cases professionals are faced with – families with multiple problems such as substance abuse, domestic violence, physical and developmental disabilities, and mental illness. Families from different cultural and religious backgrounds often require special consideration of their diversity in assisting them. Child abuse professionals may have few peers, may feel isolated from essential contact with other professionals, and have little support and encouragement for what is often difficult work. Specific expertise on certain topics may not be accessible in their geographic area, and different areas may face a varying level of coordination of services. Professionals in this field may face a high level of burnout due to the pain and stress of continuously confronting child abuse and neglect.

Program Objectives

This conference has multiple goals:

The first is to enhance awareness among professionals working with children and families regarding different aspects of the issue of child abuse and neglect.

The second is to build concrete skills for the identification, assessment, treatment and prevention of child abuse and neglect and to develop methods to coordinate services.

The third is to bring professionals from the entire state together in a forum to share information and ideas about child abuse and neglect and to build support networks.

Experts from throughout the country will address participants as a whole and in small group settings through panels, workshops and multi-media presentations. Course participants will have the opportunity to learn about other programs and methods through information tables and booths.

Participants will have the opportunity to encounter state-of-the-art information about child abuse and neglect to aid them in developing new perspectives in their work and the chance to share ideas and resources with colleagues throughout the State of Michigan.

The conference is designed for professionals working with families, including: law enforcement personnel, physicians, nurses, mental health professionals, protective services workers, prevention specialists, attorneys, teachers, social workers, psychologists and psychiatrists.

Workshops

WORKSHOPS - SESSION 1.

1. A Model for Home-Based Assessments and Interventions with Troubled Infant-Parent Dyads

This workshop will present a model for conducting home-based assessments of troubled infant-parent dyads and also a model for home-based psychotherapeutic intervention with these families.

Michael Trout, MA

2. Fetal Alcohol Syndrome/Fetal Alcohol Effect

This workshop will review the chemical effects of alcohol exposure prenatally on the brain. It will explain how this affects the child's educational, physical and social functioning.

Colleen Noble, MD

3. A New Child Welfare Direction: Solution-Focused Intervention

This workshop will introduce and outline the Brief Solution-Focused model. This competency-based approach is now being transitioned to child welfare practice and offers many advantages for family and child services. Review how to establish a positive worker-client relationship. Learn how to assess for change and how to ask the six useful questions to build solutions. Review fifteen specific techniques to work with children and their families who do not want to work with you.

Michael D. Clark, MSW

4. Legal Issues and Alternatives for Child Protection in Families Experiencing Domestic Violence

This workshop will focus on the Michigan legal framework for protecting children who live in families impacted by domestic violence. Included will be discussion of the appropriate civil and criminal statutes as well as the Child Protection Act, the Juvenile Code, applicable court rules and case decisions.

Ernestine Moore, MSW, JD

WORKSHOPS - SESSION 2.

1. Risk Assessment

Although everyone agrees that accurate risk assessment is critical in child abuse and neglect cases, there is a controversy across the country on which methodology to use. Techniques range from a general set of factors to consider, to structured check-off lists and research-based scales. This workshop will look at traditional as well as innovative approaches including the risk scale from the DSS Structured Decision Making System.

Bill Patrick, MSW

2. Woman Abuse and Child Abuse: Linking the Problem, Linking the Services

The fields of child abuse and domestic violence have developed separately, yet the two problems overlap a great deal. Half of all men who batter their wives also severely abuse one or more of their children. Even with separation or divorce, men who batter may have frequent contact with their children and ex-partners. This workshop will help participants to understand dynamics in society and the family that often make the spouse-abusing father appear "normal" and a fit parent and the mother to appear "pathological." In providing for the best interests of the child, consideration must be given to risks of the children witnessing violence and being victimized. Methods of detection and referral will be covered briefly with an emphasis on ways to hold the abuser accountable to enhance safety for mothers and to give the best protection to the children.

Daniel Saunders, PhD

Richard Tolman, PhD

3. Separation and Loss in Infancy

This workshop will examine the short-term and long-term results of early loss caused by infant's hospitalization, foster care, adoption, institutional day care, parental death and parental divorce.

Michael Trout, MA

4. DSS Initiatives:

Child Death Review Teams

This workshop will focus on the very recent history of Child Death Review Teams in the United States. Emphasis will be on their purpose, development and progress in Michigan, as well as plans for the future.

Gene Schneider, MA

Teresa Covington, MPH

Surrendering Youth: Children Having Children

The basic Department of Social Services philosophy emphasizes child welfare and family preservation. A child is generally best nurtured in his/her own family and every effort must be made to provide services to strengthen a family unit. Michigan has developed many valuable programs for Teen Parents, and these programs will be highlighted in the presentation.

JoAnne Nagy, MPA

Carlotta Wilson, MEd

WORKSHOPS - SESSION 3.

1. When People Collide: A Non-Deficit Approach to Conflict Resolution at Work

Children's Hospital of Michigan sees a large multicultural population. Too often when a hostile act occurs in the workplace, the initial response is to blame the patient or family or to label the act as "cultural". Due to an increased number of reports of potentially hostile situations, the CHM social work department developed a program that is multidisciplinary with it's goal to manage or prevent hostile or violent acts in the workplace.

Guadalupe G. Lara, MSW, CSW

2. Implications of Reunification of Families Where Sexual Abuse has Occurred.

Professionals are faced with a decision whether it is possible to reunite a family where there has been incest. This presentation will focus on the implications of such a decision. Treatment intervention to work toward reunification requires inter-agency cooperation to provide 1) protection of children, 2) state mandated authority to require cooperation, and 3) therapy. Lutheran Child and Family Services, at its Bay City Regional Office, has conducted a Child Sexual Abuse Treatment Program (with the Parents United Model) for 14 years. A number of families have been reunified. Some of these clients will speak at the presentation. There will be time for questions.

Luke Stephan, MSW, ACSW

and Lutheran Child and Family Service Counseling Staff

3. Helping Children Negotiate Issues of Identification in the Context of Paternal Maltreatment

This presentation will address how children's paternal and maternal identifications vary depending upon the stage of emotional development of the child and his or her adaptation to the trauma of paternal maltreatment. Case studies will be presented to illustrate theoretical points. Treatment modalities represented will include child psychotherapy and parent guidance work.

In addition, we will discuss prevention groups for children and mothers which can be used in conjunction with the more traditional modes of treatment.

Steven Barreto, PhD

Elizabeth Kieschnick, PhD

4. Who Hurt the Baby? The System's Choices When No One "Knows" How the Injuries Occurred

This workshop will address dilemmas faced in investigative, judicial, and therapeutic efforts to intervene on behalf of infants presenting with unexplained injuries. By thinking of the family as a system with vulnerable parents, a vulnerable partnership, and a vulnerable infant, we will discuss how to tailor a comprehensive assessment and a focused treatment plan.

Sacha Coupet, MA

Kristine Freeark, PhD

WORKSHOPS - SESSION 4.

1. High Risk Children and Youth

Children and Youth with Reactive Attachment Disorder represent an extreme challenge to mental health clinicians and direct care providers. These individuals are reckless in regard to self and others. They appear to have no conscience and are highly manipulative. Often, they are rage filled and prone to self-destructive behavior. This session will identify the causes and characteristics, as well as strategies to work with this population.

Myrna L. McNitt, MSW

2. Abilities and Injuries: What is Typical for Each Age Child

Infants at birth have little voluntary control. As they develop, they acquire increasingly complex motor abilities together with intellectual development. The typical injuries and accidents change for different age ranges. Knowledge of normal developmental and injury patterns can assist in recognizing some forms of child abuse.

Clyde L. Owings, MD, PhD

3. Journey Through Infancy: Birth Through Toddlerhood

This presentation will explore the behavior and development of young children from birth through age three. The developmental tasks and expected achievements of this age period will be explained and summarized through videotaped examples of child behavior. While the presentation will focus on normal developmental expectations, examples of how psychological and physical maltreatment compromise early child development will be discussed and reviewed. Written material summarizing worrisome indicators of emotional distress in young children will be distributed to the participants.

Susan McDonough, PhD, MSW

4. Kids' Safety; Women's Safety

This workshop will examine the interrelationship between woman battering and child abuse. Two model programs that work with battered women and their children will be presented. The Kids Club, a joint project between the Domestic Violence Project/Safe House and the U of M Clinical Psychology Department and the new domestic violence model of the Families First program will be presented. Both programs have received national funding and attention.

Sandra Graham-Bermann, MA, PhD

Susan G.S. McGee, MA

WORKSHOPS - SESSION 5.

1. Forensic Interviews of Children

This presentation deals with the mechanics of planning and conducting forensic interviews with children. Included will be the overall structure of a forensic interview, details related to phrasing questions, and specific protocols and techniques. Discussion of current resources such as handbooks and training videos will be included, along with addresses for purchasing information, so that attendees can improve their resource libraries. This workshop will be continued at 2:45.

Debra A. Poole, PhD

2. Kent County Initiatives: Working Together for Children

Kent County has a strong tradition of community involvement in issues related to children and families. This workshop will touch on a number of initiatives, but will focus on Perspective 21, an innovative community-based initiative to address the needs of abused and neglected children.

Dave Gabrielse, MSW, MPA

3. Strategies for Interventions with Incest Survivor Experiencing Parental Difficulties

This workshop will present an integration of trauma theory and object relations theory in order to illuminate several areas of difficulty incest survivors tend to encounter in their parenting—namely, difficulties guiding and responding to their children's developing sexuality and difficulties conceptualizing and maintaining appropriate parental power. A treatment case will be presented in detail in order to illustrate effective intervention strategies.

Margaret Buttenheim, PhD

Azmaira Maker, MA

4. Middle Childhood's Biopsychosocial Development: Dealing with Trauma

This workshop will describe normal biopsychosocial development of middle childhood (ages 6-12) and discuss the effects of traumatic events during this stage of development. Normal/abnormal coping and how family and professionals can intervene will be featured.

Barbara Shaltis, MSW

WORKSHOPS — SESSION 6.

1. Forensic Interviews of Children (continued)

2. Play Therapy in the Context of Family Therapy: A Case Presentation

Play is a central modality of communicating with and helping young children deal with their experiences of abuse and neglect. Family oriented therapy is also necessary to provide abused and neglected children the secure and nurturing environments needed to help them overcome their trauma. At times these approaches are conceptualized and pursued as separate modalities. This workshop will begin with a brief conceptualization of post-traumatic play therapy and family therapy, and their integration. An illustrative case of an intensive treatment of two young children, a brother and sister twinship, being raised by their grandparents will be presented and used to focus the discussion.

Alytia Levendosky, PhD

James Plunkett, PhD

3. Avoiding Compassion Burnout: Staying Involved Without Getting Fried

This presentation will take a lighthearted approach to ways to avoid the pitfalls of working in the human services field that cause so many of us to become exhausted and disillusioned, either as a professional or volunteer. Survival skills will be shared through anecdotes and suggestions for new ways: to look at the hard work of being involved with people.
