Program Objectives

On behalf of the Conference Planning Committee, I would like to invite you to the 19th Annual Statewide Conference.

This conference is designed for all professionals working with children and families, including: physicians, nurses, child advocates, educators, law enforcement personnel, mental health workers, protective services and foster care workers, prevention specialists, attorneys and all others interested in keeping our children safe and working toward lessening the violence in our society.

We are pleased to welcome Dr. Lenore Terr back to the University of Michigan, her alma mater, to present Monday's keynote address. Dr. Terr is one of today's best known and most highly respected child/adolescent psychiatrists. Her research on childhood trauma is world-renowned. Her books, Too Scared to Cry; Unchained Memories: True Stories of Traumatic Memories; Lost and Found and Beyond Love and Work are important contributions to the public's and profession's understanding of trauma, traumatic memory, and normal play.

A plenary session will be presented by Dr. Kent Hymel. Dr. Hymel has extensive experience in child abuse and neglect as chief consultant for the military. His particular area of interest and research is abusive head trauma and he has collaborated with other research pediatricians on the seminal study of this topic.

Tuesday's keynote speaker is Dr. Terry Tafoya. Dr. Tafoya is the Executive Director of Tamanawit, Unltd. which is an international consulting firm on multiculturalism, bilingual education and transcultural issues of mental health. He is trained as a traditional Native American Storyteller and his keynote is sure to entertain as well as enlighten you.

Haven't heard enough of our keynote/plenary speakers? You are in luck as Drs. Terr, Tafoya and Hymel will also be presenting workshops throughout the two days. In addition, there are 25 workshops from which to choose presented by experts from across the State of Michigan and the country.

All conference participants may attend, free of charge, the session sponsored by the Michigan Professional Society on the Abuse of Children (MiPSAC) on Monday evening. Come and mingle with your colleagues and find out what being a member of MiPSAC is all about.

We hope you will leave the conference with increased skills and knowledge, that you will have gained new perspectives in your work with children and their families, and that you will have opportunity to network with other professionals to share ideas and resources.

See you in October.

KEYNOTE – Child Abuse Interventions: Three Principles
— 9:00-10:30

Dr. Terr will discuss three basic principles she believes are always involved when a person overcomes childhood traumas – experiencing and releasing the emotions connected with the event (abreaction); thinking through the events in a broader perspective (context); and behaviorally solving similar problems (correction). Each of these mechanisms is important for recovery. She will show slides of children's and adolescent's drawings to illustrate these three important mechanisms of treatment and will give examples of incomplete treatments that missed one or more of these principles.

Lenore C. Terr, MD

WORKSHOP SESSION I – Monday Morning 10:45-12:15

1. Child Abuse, Animal Abuse and Domestic Violence: All in the Family

The links between violence to children and violence to animals have received implicit acknowledgement throughout the history of movements to address both forms of abuse, but the practical utilization of these links has been largely ignored in the field of child abuse and neglect. However, there is increasing awareness that in homes where animals are abused, people are abused, and vice versa. Child protection, domestic violence, mental health, medical, legal, law enforcement and animal humane professionals are beginning to share information and resources in recognition of the links. This workshop will highlight animal cruelty, child abuse, domestic violence, current case law and statutes regarding children and animals as well as implications for professionals.

Barbara W. Boat, PhD

2. "I Take It Back" When a Child Recants

This workshop will focus on the causes of recantation, how to prevent it from happening, as well as tips to deal with recanting victims, both outside the courtroom and inside. Tips will include "red flags" to watch for in dealing with children and families of abuse, steps to take in ensuring that recantation does not occur in high-risk situations, as well as pointers on dealing with recantation once it occurs both pre-trial and during trial situations.

Mary-Ann Burkhardt, JD

3. Emotional Milieu and Growth

The child whose slow growth is caused by psychosocial factors is not always easy to identify. The growth failure caused by psychosocial stress can mimic the child with hypopituitarism since growth hormone levels may be temporarily suppressed. Emotional stress can be associated with marked delays in physical growth, developmental milestones and immature behavior. Clues to diagnosis include infantile-regressive behavior, disturbed interpersonal relationships, bizarre behavior including labile age appropriateness, family stress and rapid change in the child and his/her growth rate when the environment is altered or when there is a change in family dynamics (parent separation, divorce, birth of a new sibling, death of a close family member).

The parent may not give "permission to grow" on a subconscious level through a desire for a baby, symbiotic relationships with the child, denial of a problem, or denial of the growth process. The child may not have the "will to grow" because of these conflicts. The child may have a fear of growing up because of sexual abuse or fear of death.

Nancy Hopwood, MD

4. Children with Disabilities: Abuse, Problems with Investigation, and Recommendations

Although children with disabilities are twice as likely to be abused and neglected in their lifetime, many professionals do not wish to work with these cases due to major problems which influence the investigation, evaluation and prosecution. This workshop will examine those factors and recommend workable strategies. It will explore some of the issues related to the culture of specific disabilities which increase the child's vulnerability to abuse and neglect.

Judith A. Allen, MS, LPC

5. Child Abuse Interventions: Applications Practical

This workshop will cover the following principles of trauma treatment and their applications:

Abreaction, context and corrections as general principles of therapy

When to use medications and which ones

Families – what can be done?

Groups: Prefixed, open-ended, self help

Cognitive behavioral approaches

Infants, toddlers, and preschoolers in treatment

Large group techniques

Special techniques: map-making, corrective dreaming, play therapies, eliciting the story behind the drawing

PLENARY SESSION - Monday 1:15-2:45

Inflicted Head Trauma: Diagnostic Lessons Learned

This plenary session will begin with an overview of the clinical, radiological, and pathological presentations for inflicted pediatric head trauma. Thereafter, we will explore the clinical and social factors linked to the misdiagnosis of abusive head trauma. How often is this diagnosis missed? What are the most frequent erroneous diagnoses applied to young children with inflicted cranial injuries? Are there biases which influence a clinician's willingness to consider child abuse? What are the costs of missing this diagnosis? How can we do better? In this plenary session, we will explore startling research findings on missed abusive head trauma.

Kent P. Hymel, MD

WORKSHOP SESSION II - Monday Afternoon 3:00-4:30

1. Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder and Co-morbid Conditions

The presenters will discuss ADHD symptomatology and overlap with behavioral sequelae of child abuse. Co-morbid diagnoses with ADHD will also be discussed.

Tom Fluent, MD; Paula A. Bank, MD, PhD

2. Assessment and Treatment of Families at Risk of Physical Child Abuse: An Early Intervention Approach

Opportunities for prevention of child abuse have increased during the past few years in Michigan, due partly to the Binsfield legislation, implementation of the Structured Decision Making System for CPS workers, and heightened attention to brain development during the first few years of life. Clinicians must be able to conduct focused assessments and provide targeted early intervention strategies for families at risk of physical child abuse. This presentation will clearly differentiate physical discipline, punishment, and abuse; discuss risk factors specific to physical child abuse; and describe treatment strategies which consider "dosage", duration and intensity of services needed, home versus clinic-based treatment, and developmentally appropriate approaches. Specific effective early intervention programs will also be described.

Ellen E. Whipple, PhD, ACSW

Workshops

3. Estimating the Timing of Pediatric Head Trauma

Can a young child suffer blunt head trauma, appear normal, and later experience delayed clinical deterioration and/or death? Patients who "talk after closed head trauma and later deteriorate or die" (the TADD Syndrome) represent a small but important subgroup of patients with traumatic brain injury. Under what clinical circumstances does delayed clinical deterioration occur after closed head trauma? The answers to these questions have important forensic implications regarding the estimation of the timing of pediatric cranial injury. In this workshop, we will search the medical literature for answers.

Kent P. Hymel, MD

4. Baby Basics: Shaken Baby Prevention Project

"Baby Basics" is the name of a one hour presentation designed to enlighten young people about the nature of crying and babies. The presentation dispels some misconceptions about babies and teaches why shaking a baby is so dangerous. It even uses male volunteers to show how to safely pick up babies. The project was developed through a collaborative effort with key organizations who work with babies. The end result of this collaboration was this presentation, a magnet, a lullaby and a billboard.

Ellen Hatcher, MS, SSP

5. "I Take It Back" When a Child Recants

This workshop will focus on the causes of recantation, how to prevent it from happening, as well as tips to deal with recanting victims, both outside the courtroom and inside. Tips will include "red flags" to watch for in dealing with children and families of abuse, steps to take in ensuring that recantation does not occur in high-risk situations, as well as pointers on dealing with recantation once it occurs both pre-trial and during trial situations.

Mary-Ann Burkhart, JD

2. Brittle Bones, "Temporary" and Otherwise, in the Differential Diagnosis of Child Abuse

A discussion of medical conditions sometimes confused with child abuse that may present with bone fractures, including osteogenesis imperfecta and the factitious "temporary brittle bone disease". The findings (or alleged findings) of these will be compared and contrasted with those of child abuse.

Elaine S. Pomeranz, MD

3. Children with Disabilities: Abuse, Problems with Investigation, and Recommendations (This is a repeat of the workshop held Monday)

Although children with disabilities are twice as likely to be abused and neglected in their lifetime, many professionals do not wish to work with these cases due to major problems which influence the investigation, evaluation and prosecution. This workshop will examine those factors and recommend workable strategies. It will explore some of the issues related to the culture of specific disabilities which increase the child's vulnerability to abuse and neglect.

Judith A. Allen, MS, LPC

4. Family Group Decision Making Panel

Family group decision making (FGDM) empowers families to invest in themselves and their decision to protect their children from abuse and neglect. FGDM identifies concerned members of the child's kinship and community, facilitates a family conference, provides support, assessment and casework services creating a safe environment for children through the family's plan.

*Van Buren County Family Independence Agency
Leelanau County Family Independence Agency
Child and Family Services of Northwest Michigan
Bethany Christian Services of Grand Rapids*

5. You Didn't Say What I Say You Say

This presentation will focus on how cross-cultural elements of verbal and non-verbal communication can enhance or impede service delivery in working with diverse populations. Participants will be asked to examine their own styles of communication.

Terry Tafoya, PhD

WORKSHOP IV – Tuesday Afternoon 1:15-2:45

1. Child Abuse 101-An Introduction to the Medical Evaluation of Child Sexual Abuse

The medical evaluation of child sexual abuse includes specialized knowledge and techniques in obtaining medical history, performing the physical examination, ordering laboratory tests and coming to a medical diagnosis that is useful to provide information for non-medical professionals. We shall review the basics of information gathering and diagnosis in the medical system to assist the community in its important role of protecting children and helping families.

Vincent J. Palusci, MD

2. FIA and Prosecutors: Making A Case for Court

An overview of family court practice from the standpoint of inter-agency cooperation, teamwork, and preparation. We will explore what it means to be prepared for court. This examination of preparation begins in the investigative stages and progresses through trial and the post-trial hearing stages. We will examine the roles of case workers and prosecutors and how they can work effectively as a team. We will look at common defense strategies used to defeat cases and how to meet and defeat those strategies. Finally, we will examine common mistakes and how they contribute to lack of success in the courtroom setting.

Paul Lochner, JD

KEYNOTE – Tuesday, October 24 – 9:00-10:30

Mending the Sacred Hoop and Embracing the Shadow: Building Communities from the Roots Up

This presentation will elaborate on the theme of the traditional Native American concept of "The Sacred Hoop", or sense of unity and connectedness that has been damaged in contemporary society. The feelings of isolation and loneliness, so pervasive within our communities and so much a part of addiction issues, abuse, and gang formation are some of the symptoms of this shattered Hoop. The keynote will focus on the need to confront, acknowledge, and celebrate "The Shadow" of that which one fears most about oneself (i.e., Sexuality, Alcoholism, one's Family) through the use of storytelling, humor, and cross-cultural elements or healing, as one of the first necessary steps for restoring the Sacred Hoop to wholeness. The Native American concepts of the Sacred Clown and legends of Coyote, the Trickster, will provide a paradigm for this presentation.

Terry Tafoya, PhD

WORKSHOP SESSION III - Tuesday Morning 10:45-12:15

1. New Ideas in Assessing Substance Abuse

This presentation will give the participants insights about substance abuse treatment and very practical tools for assessment. The audience will be treated to an overview of systemic, developmental, cultural, psychological and solution-focused perspectives in this brain tickling workshop that promises to feed both the heart and the head.

Michael Stratton, ACSW, CAC

Workshops

Tuesday Afternoon – 1:15-2:45

3. The Path of the Clown: Issues of Sacred Healing

Utilizing the archetypal figure of the sacred clown of Native American history as a guide, this workshop will work with traditional storytelling, slides, and music as a way of playing with the structure of effective interventions in the healing process. The sacred clown is a primary example of paradoxical intervention, and a way of changing frames in a humorous manner that does not tend to engage a client/therapist's defense mechanisms. This workshop will also be appropriate for staff who do not have direct therapeutic involvement with the patients, but who do have responsibilities of direct contact with the public learning new ways to deal with "difficult people."

Terry Tafoya, PhD

4. Practical Interventions to Prevent and Reduce Emotional Problems in Adopted Children

Many adopted children develop behavior problems such as lying, oppositional behavior and inability to achieve in school which often do not respond to traditional parenting and teaching methods of rewarding and consequence. Dr. Katz will explain how emotional problems involving attachment, control, self-esteem, anger and the negative "I don't care" attitudes, produce these behaviors and will demonstrate effective, practical interventions that parents, teachers and therapists can use to reduce and prevent these emotional and behavioral problems.

Michael Katz, PhD

5. Dog Bite Prevention

This presentation will explain three typical types of emotions that cause dogs to bite, teaching how to diffuse and ultimately deal with any dog. Live demonstrations, including trained dogs, bring the point home.

Cheryl Carlson

WORKSHOP V – Tuesday Afternoon 3:00-4:30

1. Permanency Planning for Abused/Neglected/Delinquent Teens: An Elusive Venture?

This workshop will address four issues related to adolescents in need of care; 1) permanency planning; 2) the difference between an abused/neglected adolescent and a juvenile delinquent-basic profiles; 3) needs assessments-adolescent and family; 4) out of home placements and aftercare planning (reintegration). Participants will also discuss the variables that impact case management decision making related to permanency planning-personal and societal values, best practice models, experience, and available resources.

Julie Jenkins

2. Sexual Abuse Prevention Programs: The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly

What is good prevention? What is bad or potentially harmful? What seems to "look good" but at deeper levels are just insignificant efforts to make adults feel like they are "doing something about sexual abuse?" This workshop will review theory and research regarding child sexual abuse prevention programs. It will update participants on current controversies in prevention interventions, informing attendees of what the research has to tell us about what does and doesn't work—and how different modalities work better with some populations than with others. Included in the presentation are the findings of a recent nation-wide study of 87 prevention programs, revealing what is actually happening in programs as reported by program advocates, including challenges and successes. This workshop will also provide an opportunity for networking with others interested in prevention efforts as we share what is working, what is not, and how we can tell.

Carol A. Plummer, MSW, ACSW

3. Infant Brain Development and Beyond

This workshop will discuss the critical relationship issues and rapport between infants, families, caseworkers, and service providers necessary to promote healthy and positive brain development. This is intended to be an information sharing workshop with the targeted audience being those that are involved with infants and families, especially those children placed in foster care.

Natalie Riddle-Bashford; Julia Luttrell; Myrna McNitt

4. Supported Visitation: New Definitions, New Challenges

PACT's supported visitation model is based on a theoretical framework of relationship-focused intervention. This workshop will discuss specific intervention strategies that help move parents from anger and avoidance to actively supporting the developmental needs of their babies, toddlers and children. Case material, with video-taped illustrations, will be used to explore the unique opportunities and challenges for relationship-focused intervention afforded by a supported visitation format.

Kathleen Baltman; Nichole Paradis, CSW

5. Oral Manifestations of Child Abuse and Neglect

Over 65% of child abuse cases involve trauma to the mouth, face, or head. Although abusive parents may avoid taking their child to the same physician or hospital, they do tend to return to the same dental office where signs of child abuse and neglect are frequently detected. These signs may include physical injuries, infections, or abnormal behaviors by the child or the parents. Dental neglect is a distinct type of child neglect that can result in significant health consequences for the child, including difficulty eating or performing other daily activities such as playing or going to school, chronic pain, or growth delay.
